

Stalled

You have explained a difficult concept, but your class did not understand anything.

Offline

You have a course that requires students to search on the web, but the internet connection is broken.

Aggression

You have a hostile student that disturbs the lesson and becomes verbally aggressive.

After-lunch nap

You have lessons after lunch and your students have trouble concentrating.

Background noise

Your students are constantly chatting and murmuring.

Einstein

You have a student that is far ahead of the rest of the class. He knows & shows it.

Twin peaks

Your class is divided in two:
half know the subject well,
the other half doesn't have a clue.

Pitch black

You have prepared lots of slides. The projector breaks down 10 minutes before the lesson.

Einsteins revenge

During your lesson, you figure out that your students know much more about the subject than you do.

Stage fright

It's your first lesson.

You are really nervous.

Out of time

You have an hour left, but prepared material for two.

Extra Time

You have two hours left,
but prepared material for one.

What... TOMORROW?

You have 24 hours to prepare a two-hour lesson.
Not a minute more.

What... ME?

You have to prepare a two-hour lesson on a subject you know very little about.
